13. Landscaping or Special Setting Features: The house, associated agricultural buildings, and airplane landing strip, sit on former agricultural land within the boundaries of the recently established Sand Creek Massacre National Historic Site. The Big Sandy Creek (Sand Creek) traverses the associated landholdings north of the ranch complex buildings. At one time some of the nearby acreage was cultivated but William F. Dawson replanted the areas with native grasses. The entire Dawson Ranch Building Complex is south of the village site where Colonel John Chivington and his troops attacked an encampment of Cheyenne and Arapaho peoples in the Sand Creek Massacre (5KW28) and has no association to that event. The Dawson Ranch Building Complex is in Section 30. Outside of the physical boundary of this survey but within the boundaries of the former Dawson Ranch land holdings are ruins of the Thompson-Bohart Ranch/Dawson Family Line Camp and remains of the immense Chivington/Brandon Canal circa 1909 (5KW122.1). Both are also in Section 30. In Section 24 are potential remains of a sheep operation associated with an African American pioneer known as “Nigger Charlie.” These sites are indicative of several of the contexts in Colorado Historical Society’s Colorado Southern Frontier Historic Context. Sites and potential sites include examples of Early Farming and Ranching in Southeastern Colorado (1840-1890), The Years of Conflict (1850-1870), Open Range Ranching (1859-1900), and the Ethnic Diversity of Southeastern Colorado (1880-1945).

30. Associated Contexts and Historical Information:

The Dawson Ranch Building Complex is associated with the context of Post World War II Farming and Ranching (1945-2000). The land upon which the barn is located was homesteaded in 1907. Levi and Florence Rutledge purchased all the sections that comprise the ranch holdings, combining them in 1949. They built the ranch residence between 1951 and 1952.

William F. Dawson purchased the ranch in 1963. In the 1970s he built the barn and adjoining corral. Compared to other nearby barns, the structure is well made and of new rather than recycled materials. The building is not an example of exceptional craftsmanship or a particular style.

The Dawson ranch operation was typical for Kiowa County. They ran 150 head of Hereford cattle—an average amount and common breed for Kiowa County—and kept one to four horses. The ranch was 1,465 acres, on the small size for a Kiowa County holding, but Dawson ran his cattle on other land that he leased and owned.

The house and the later outbuildings, including the barn, have no relationship to the actual Sand Creek Massacre event. The barn is not over fifty years old, is not of significant architectural value, and is not associated with a significant event and/or person. It does not meet the criteria for the National Register.

2 Marci Miller, Deputy Assessor of Kiowa County, telephone interview by recorder, 22 May 2005. Note: In comparing the Dawson acreage to the 1997 Department of Agriculture Census the ranch is smaller than the average Kiowa County farm size of 2,696 acres. According to Miller he used his parents land as well.
