Project Abstract:

The objective of this research is to support efforts to promote collaboration and share data and resources through the USGS Pacific Northwest Aquatic Monitoring Partnership (PNAMP) site. The Big Sky Institute will research in web delivery for biological and natural resources information in a variety of thematic and geographic areas at varying scales. Information will be available via the PNAMP website at <http://www.pnamp.org> and PNAMP's Monitoring Methods website at <http://www.monitoringmethods.org>; and available to natural resource research and management communities, their partners, other stakeholders, and the public. Information will be organized and presented in such a way that allows ease of use and facilitates information discovery.
